HOME AND CHILD

Does your horse "feel his oats"? What a difference between the grain-fed and the grass-fed horse! The first strong and full of ginger, the second flabby, weak and tired out before he begins. The feeding makes the difference. Children are not alike either. One is rosy, bright-eyed, full of life and laughter, another is pale, weak and dull. The feeding again is responsible.

Sickly children need special feeding. They don't "feel their oats". Scott's Emulsion adds just the right richness to their diet. It is like grain to the horse. The child gets new appetite and strong digestion.

Scott's Emulsion is more than food. It is a strong medicine. It rouses up dull children, puts new flesh on thin ones and red blood into pale ones. It makes children grow.

Scott's Emulsion makes ordinary food do its duty.

This picture represents the Trade Mark of Scott's Emulsion and is on the wrapper of every bottle.

A Kentucky Cardinal. Notwithstanding the inclement weather a large audience greeted Miss Frances Bowen Smith's presentation of James Lane Allen's deservedly popular romance, A Kentucky Cardinal.

The excerpts were made by the reader herself, and were most suitable in length and selection for the occasion. Only two characters were portrayed, Adam and Georgiana; the former earnest, thoughtful and devoted in his love of nature; the latter impulsive and capricious yet tender and sincere.

Miss Smith's impersonations were, as her instruction among pupils has always been, free from the exaggeration that too frequently and unfortunately enters into elocutionary efforts. It was highly effective in its simplicity and clearness, showing that the reader had a clear conception of and thoroughly understood what she read, and made it correspondingly intelligible to those who listened.

At the close of the programme the audience was expressive of its appreciation in spontaneous and continued applause; in response to the demands of which Miss Smith returned and gave "Courtship Under Difficulties."

The reading was given in two parts, before each of which Messrs. Conrad and Stark played a choice ensemble selection, the C Major Sonata for Piano and Violin.

Miss Todhunter Honored. Boonville Democrat.

During the past few days the beautiful home of Colonel and Mrs. John Elliott on Main street has been the scene of two special gatherings of more than ordinary import in honor of Miss Elliott Todhunter, a charming and brilliant young lady of Lexington, Mo. The first of the functions took place on Wednesday afternoon of the past week when thirty-five young ladies of the town were invited in to meet Miss Todhunter. The second was on Monday evening when several married couples were Mrs. Elliott's guests.

Enjoyable and entertaining features of the evening were the recitals and readings of Miss Todhunter who is an elocutionist of rare ability. She is versatile in the extreme, reciting the most classical as well as the most comical pieces with an ease and charm that captivates her hearers. "Leah—The Forsaken," recited by her, proved a special favorite of the guests. Miss Todhunter is the niece of Col. and Mrs. Elliott and one of their kin of whom they are justly proud. Aside from her natural intelligence and refinement she is highly educated and possesses conversational powers that make her a valuable acquisition to society. Her many friends in Boonville wish her visits here in the future to be more frequent. Delightful luncheon in courses were served by caterers on both occasions.
